

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for achieving seamless, Internet Protocol (IP) wireless station mobility by using an Internet Protocol (IP) router to receive and classify IP packets and route them to their desired destination based on these classifications as the IP host moves between networks. The use of this method and apparatus provides a transparent network to facilitate Internet mobility management.